Processed by: HLP
Date Completed: September 1982

The papers of Evan P. Aurand were deposited in the Dwight D. Eisenhower Library by Mr. Aurand in November 1977, November 1979, and December 1980. All three accessions were combined in this collection.

Linear feet of shelf space occupied: 20.4
Approximate number of pages: 40,800
Approximate number of items: 10,000

An instrument of gift for these papers was signed by Admiral Aurand on January 8, 1978. Literary rights which the donor has in the unpublished materials of this collection are assigned to the United States as of January 1, 1978. Under terms of the instrument of gift the following classes of documents are withheld from research use:

1. Papers and other historical materials that are specifically authorized under criteria established by statute or Executive Order to be kept secret in the interest of national defense or foreign policy, and are in fact properly classified pursuant to such statute or Executive Order.
2. Papers and other historical materials the disclosure of which would constitute a clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy or a libel of a living person.

SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

The papers of Evan P. Aurand cover the period from 1934 to 1972, but about forty per cent of the collection is concentrated in the years, 1957 to 1961, when he was the Naval Aide to President Eisenhower. About thirty per cent of the material falls within the years prior to his term as naval aide (1934 to 1957), and a nearly equal amount covers his naval career in the following years (1961 to 1972). The Aurand Papers arrived at the Library in three separate accessions (78-10, 80-8, 81-8) which have been combined in this collection. As they were stored in a humid climate for a number of years some documents and photographs have suffered from moisture damage and related problems, such as rusting metal closures.

The papers are organized into three series arranged chronologically. The first series covers the period from 1934 to 1957. This includes his studies at the U.S. Naval Academy and his first twenty years in the U.S. Navy. During this time he advanced to the rank of captain.

There is limited documentation, consisting mainly of correspondence and grade reports, on Aurand's years at the Naval Academy. The World War II period, during which he became a naval aviator and commanded a carrier-based night fighter squadron, is also lightly represented by copies of orders, correspondence, and personnel information. The first series contains considerable materials, including correspondence, reports, lists, and miscellaneous data, dealing with Aurand's command of Squadron VF-51, the first carrier-based squadron to receive jet aircraft in the late 1940's. Speech materials and course studies and notes from the Air War College are additional areas of emphasis in this series.

The second series covers the four years Aurand spent as Eisenhower's Naval Aide. Correspondence, invitations, appointment books, and speaking and writing materials all reflect the widely varied activities Aurand participated in as Naval Aide. Handling problems of logistics and making travel arrangements for the President were an important part of Aurand's job. Since Navy personnel were used on the presidential yacht and other boats and at Camp David, it was Aurand's job to notify the officers in charge of these duty stations when the President planned to use these facilities. In connection with Presidential trips, the Naval Aide also arranged for ships, planes, or helicopters to be on hand when needed at a specific domestic or foreign location. Additional topics receiving some coverage in this series include missile developments, nuclear powered aircraft, aircraft carriers, the official Navy policy, or "line," on various issues, and the duties and qualifications of a Naval Aide to the President.

The third series of Aurand's papers deals with the years 1961 to 1972. Aurand rose to the rank of Vice Admiral and culminated his career by commanding the Antisubmarine Warfare Force of the U.S. Pacific Fleet for three years, 1969 to 1972. Types of documents found in this series include orders, vouchers, leave requests, fitness reports, correspondence, invitations, speeches, and position reports of ships. About one fourth of this sixteen-box series is comprised of fitness reports and worksheets for fitness reports which were filled out by Admiral Aurand or his staff. These reports, which evaluate Aurand's subordinates, are closed to researchers under current government guidelines.

Antisubmarine warfare is a topic of major importance in this series. Aurand had two different commands involving this type of activity--Rear Admiral he commanded Antisubmarine Warfare Group One, Western Pacific deployment (1965-1967), and as Vice Admiral he commanded Antisubmarine Warfare Force, U.S. Pacific Fleet (1969-1972). Tactics and equipment used in antisubmarine warfare are described in materials in the third series.

There is also considerable correspondence between Aurand and former President Eisenhower during this period. They discussed such topics as the Korean Navy, the organization of the Defense Department, NATO, and the Indochina war.

Other topics of interest in this series are the role of aircraft carriers, the Vietnam War, nuclear powered carriers, reorganization of the naval staff, internal Navy matters, the operations of a Navy ship, naval exercises, and the state funeral plans for Dwight D. Eisenhower. Documents on other topics, such plans as the Pueblo court of inquiry, the Trident submarine, various change of command ceremonies, and the use of cost analysis in the U. S. Navy, can also be found in the third series.

At the time of processing, it is estimated that approximately five per cent of this collection is security classified, most of it at the confidential level with a few items at the top secret level. Another ten per cent of the collection is closed due to donor restrictions. A large portion of the classified and closed materials is in the third series of the collection.

Over 3,000 photographs, a small number of transparencies, 110 negatives, about two dozen slides, 6,950 feet of audio recordings 20,000 feet of motion picture film, and 33 records or discs have been removed from the collection and transferred to the audiovisual department of the Eisenhower Library. Two maps were transferred to the Eisenhower Library's map collection, twenty-eight books were transferred to the book collection, and thirty-eight items went to the Dwight D. Eisenhower Museum.
