SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

The Supreme Headquarters, Allied Expeditionary Force (SHAEF) was a joint U.S.-British military organization created in England in February 1944 to carry out the invasion of western Europe. Dwight D. Eisenhower, an officer of the United States Army, was appointed Supreme Allied Commander. Eisenhower organized his staff along U.S. military lines with separate staff sections devoted to personnel (G-1), intelligence (G-2), operations (G-3), logistics (G-4) and civilian affairs (G-5).

The most significant files at SHAEF were kept in the Office of the Secretary of the General Staff (SGS). The SGS office served as a type of central file for SHAEF. The highest-level documents that received the personal attention of the Supreme Allied Commander and the Chief of Staff usually ended up in the SGS files. Many of the staff sections and administrative offices at SHAEF retired material to the SGS files. However, most offices maintained separate filing systems for material that was needed close at hand for immediate reference.

After the conclusion of hostilities in May 1945 SHAEF staff began to close down its activities and SHAEF was formally dissolved in July 1945. A small joint U.S.-British organization, the Combined Administrative Liquidating Agency (CALA) was created to finish disbanding the SHAEF organization. Because both the U.S. and British governments had an interest in SHAEF, arrangements were made so that both countries could have copies of the SHAEF records. The Combined Chiefs of Staff decided that all the original records of SHAEF would be given to the U.S., while microfilm copies of the records would be given to the British.

The CALA staff organized the SHAEF records by office of origin, and then by whatever filing scheme had been used in the office. In most cases this was a numerical file based on the U.S. War Department system. After the arrangement was complete, inventories were prepared of all the files. These were usually lists of file titles and contained no information on individual documents or the administrative nature of the office that created the files. The files were then microfilmed, except for a few routine items and some personnel files. The film was sent to the British government while the original records and a duplicate copy of the film was sent to the U.S. government. The records are now at the National Archives as part of Record Group 331, Records of Allied Operational and Occupation Headquarters.

This collection consists of a duplicate copy of the microfilm of the records that were maintained by the Secretary of the General Staff at SHAEF. Most of the material consists of cables, correspondence, reports and maps. The first 60 reels (consisting of 16mm film) contain the bulk of the SGS records. Reels 1 to 48 contain the main numerical subject file. Reels 49 to 60 contain files on specific countries, arranged alphabetically by the name of the country and thereunder numerically by subject code.

While filming the records, oversized maps and charts were removed from the files and filmed separately on two reels of 35mm film, which comprise reels 61 and 62. Cross-reference sheets were filmed with the records to show the locations from which the oversized items had been removed.

Additional information on the work of the SHAEF staff is in several other collections at the Eisenhower Library. These include the Pre-Presidential Papers of Dwight D. Eisenhower, the SHAEF Selected Records, and the Walter Bedell Smith Collection of World War II Documents.
